31. Sl: In a typical Indian village today, one is certain to find groups of women talking about finance. In a society where women play significant but never-recognised roles, being a part of an SHG which gives them such financial power is indeed a matter of pride. P Sitting there, they might proudly introduce themselves by saying that they are members of a self- help group (SHG). Altematively, they might lend money at reasonable interest rates to members for starting small businesses. They can be seen sitting under a tree, in an abandoned school building, or in the front yard of a village resident's dilapidated home, holding thick notebooks. S : An SHG is usually a community group of 10-12 women from similar socio-economic back- ground who pool their financial resources for taking up joint economic activities. [CDS (II) 2026 Q31]

32. Sl: For much of history, sumames, or last names, were not considered necessary. S6: These two pieces of medieval bureaucracy meant that virtually everyone had to settle on a definite and fixed surname. P : The other was the enactment of the Statute of Additions in 1413, which required that all legal documents to contain not just the person's given name, but also his or her occupation and place of abode. One was the introduction of a poll tax in 1379, which led the government to collect the name of every person aged sixteen or over. But sometimes, the process was accelerated such as in England where two events gave a boost to the adoption of surnames. S • The business of acquiring sur- names was a long one that evolved over centuries rather than [CDS (II) 2026 Q32]

33. The first American settlers happened to live in the midst of perhaps the most exciting period in the history of the English language. Had the settlers gone a quarter of a century earlier, America might well have preserved those pre- vious forms, as it preserved many other archaisms. P • Similarly, thee and thou pronoun forms were also dying out. This was a time when 12,000 words were being added to the language. One such change which these first settlers had already adopted was to use the s form on verbs, saying has rather than hath, runs rather than runneth. S • It was also a time of considerable change in the structure of the language. [CDS (II) 2026 Q33]

34. Sl: In 1984, two small clay tablets of vaguely rectangular shape were found in Tell Brak, Syria, dating from the fourth millennium BCE. S6: All our history begins with these two modest tablets as they are among the oldest examples of writing we know. One of the animals may have been a goat, in which case, the other probably was a sheep. Lying there were these simple, unimpressive objects, each bearing a few discrete markings : a small indentation near the top and some sort of stick-drawn aninial in the centre. R : The indentation, on the other hand, represents, according to archaeologists, the number ten. S : These two tablets were seen by an expert the year before the Gulf War, in an unostentatious display case in the Archaeological Museum of Baghdad. [CDS (II) 2026 Q34]

35. Sl: For generations, the Balaraju pond remained the primary water source of Perakalapudi village in Guntur district of Andhra Pradesh. S6 : It was only after major restoration work was carried out to restore the pond's storage capacity that the community could return to its traditional livelihood. By the 2000s, decades of water mismanagement led to a rapid drop in the groundwater table as well. However, overexploitation caused the pond to shrink to half its original size and reduced its water storage capacity by 60 per cent. The pond, spread across 24 hec- tares, supported irigation, sus- tained the fishing community, met household needs and remained home to a wide variety of flora and fauna. S • As the pond disappeared, the households relied on groundwater to meet their daily needs. [CDS (II) 2026 Q35]

36. SI: While most people are com- fortable talking about colour, the concept of luminance — even though it is more fundamental — seems less familiar. S6: This is something the Impres- sionist artists were able to master and it gave a shimmering, lively quality to many of their paintings. P • For example, given two patches of grey, they can easily tell which is lighter. Q : As the artist and art teacher Josef Albers states, just as a musician should be able to distinguish between a higher tone and a lower tone, an artist should be able to distinguish between higher and lower light intensity between different colours. Artists, however, must learn to distinguish differences in lumi- nance, independent of colour. But given two patches of different colours, it is often difficult to make the same distinction. 37. Sl: Wooden fumiture is durable and long-lasting, reducing the need for frequent replacement. S6: A still better and sustainable, though slow, way is to plant new trees to maintain the forest cover. Some of these negative impacts are deforestation and the loss of habitat for numerous species of Deforestation in turn disrupts water-cycles and accelerates the pace of climate change. However, its use causes several negative ecological impacts. One way of reducing the use of wood is to recycle it as much as possible. [CDS (II) 2026 Q37]

38. Sl: Circadian rhythm is a term used to refer to the physical, mental and behavioural changes an organism experiences over a 24-hour cycle. S6: Maintaining a good circadian rhythm through appropriate expo- sure to natural light, consistent sleep schedules and times of eating, and adequate physical exercise during the day can allow an organism to live a healthy life. P : Prolonged disruption, moreover, can cause long-term damages such as metabolic diseases, cardio- vascular problems, and mental health issues. Light and dark (daytime and night-time) have the biggest influence on these circadian rhythms. Circadian rhythms are also affected by food intake, stress, physical activity, social environ- ment and temperature. When any one or more than one of these cause the circadian rhythm to be disrupted, it can lead to sleep problems, drowsiness and poor focus. [CDS (II) 2026 Q38]

39. Sl: All the different parts of our eye help us to see. S6 : These electrical signals then travel through the optic nerve to the brain which in turn converts these signals into the images we see. P : The iris, which is the coloured part of the eye, controls how much light the pupil lets in. Q : Next, light passes through the lens, the clear inner part of the eye, which focuses this light on the retina. R • First, light passes through the comea, the clear front layer of the eye, and enters the eye through an opening called the pupil. S • When it hits the retina, special cells called photoreceptors convert the light into electrical signals. [CDS (II) 2026 Q39]

40. Sl : Humans in colder climates first began wearing some form of sturdy foot covering at least 40,000 years ago. S6: Today, minimalistic barefoot shoes are becoming popular because they allow the wearer to feel the ground beneath their feet while still offering some protec- tion and support. P • Unfortunately, modern shoes have also had a negative impact on feet due to bad design such as a narrow toe box, difference in heel to toe drop, however slight, and stiff soles. Earlier skeletons had very robust little toes that could bend and grip surfaces. R These gradually evolved to become less substantial than the big toe because shoe-like coverings reduced the mechanical stress on them and made them weaker. The evidence for this comes from the study of changes in the structure of the toe bones of foot skeletons from that time. [CDS (II) 2026 Q40]

(c) irections : Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow the passage. Your answers to the questions should be based on the passage only. Passage As the new century begins, it is becoming evident to urban dwellers, whether in industrial or developing countries, that there is an immanent conflict between the automobile and the city. Urban air pollution, often from automobiles, claims millions of lives. Congestion also takes a direct economic toll in rising costs in time and the use of petrol. Another cost of cities that are devoted to cars is a psychological one, a deprivation of contact with the natural world — an "asphalt complex". There is a growing body of evidence that there is an innate human need for contact with nature. Both ecologists and psychologists have been aware of this for some time. Ecologists, led by Harvard University biologist E.O. Wilson, have formulated the "biophilia hypothesis", which argues that those who are deprived of contact with nature suffer psychologically and that this deprivation leads to a measurable decline in well-being. Meanwhile psychologists have coined their own term — ecopsychology — in which they make the same argument. Theodore Roszak, a leader in this field, cites a study that documents humans' dependence on nature by looking at the rate Of recovery of patients in a hospital in Pennsylvania. Those whose rooms overlooked gardens with grass, trees, flowers, and birds recovered from illnesses

(c) tiny
(d) oomed /60A Passage—II People do not understand the nature or ramifications of most educational changes. They become involved in change voluntarily or involuntarily and in either case experience ambivalence about its meanings, form, and consequences. I have implied that there are a number Of things at stake—changes in goals, skills, philosophy or beliefs, behaviour, etc. Subjectively these different aspects are experienced in a diffuse, incoherent manner. Change often is not conceived of as being multidimensional. Objectively, it is possible to clarify the meaning of an educational change by identifying and describing its separate dimensions. Ignorance of these dimensions explains a number of interesting phenomena in the field of educational changes : for example, why some people accept an innovation they do not understand; why some aspects of a change are implemented and others not; why strategies for change neglect certain essential components. The concept of objective reality is tricky. Reality is always defined by individuals and groups. But individuals and groups interact to produce social phenomena (constitutions, laws, policies, educational change programmes), which exist outside any given individual. There is also the danger that the objective reality is only the reflection of the producers of change and thus simply a glorified version of their subjective conceptions. We can reduce this problem by following the practice of posing double questions : "What is the existing conception of reality on a given issue?" Followed quickly by "says who?"

900. Sl: Traditional songs and music form the identity of the tribal culture. S6: These tribal songs, on one hand, . glorified their hero and on the other, inspired their fellow tribes- man to participate in the freedom struggle. P : The tribal area of Chhatisgarh always resonated with the sound of traditional tribal songs and music. They reflect tribals' natural spirit, unconditional love, and innate energy at every stage of their life. Initially, the tribal songs in their dialects, reverberated with the rebellion of their area, and then with the movement that was prevalent in the country. The forest areas and tribal settlements of Chhatisgarh, began the revolt against the British at the very beginning of the freedom struggle, much before the urban [CDS (I) 2023 Q60]

902. Sl: The equatorial zone is generally an area of abundant precipitation (over 200 centimetres annually). S6: It is to be noted that a larger part of the precipitation in this region falls as heavy intermittent convec- tive showers accompanied by thunder and lightning. The ascending air currents become intensified locally in the tropical storms that produce abundant precipitation in the Caribbean, the southwest Pacific Ocean, the Indian Ocean and the China Sea. Q : Over the land areas, most of the precipitation occurs from the thunderstorms that are very fre- quent and active in the equatorial regions. This high level of precipitation is due to the equatorial belt's high temperature, high humidity and highly unstable air. S : The trade winds from both the hemispheres converge and give rise to a general upward motion of air. [CDS (I) 2023 Q62]

904. Sl: There exists a close relation- ship between meteorology and climatology. S6 : First, the meteorological aspect of this discipline examines the process of gain and loss of heat energy by the air layer near the ground, keeping in view the fact that the basic principles apply at any place on the globe. Second, climatological aspect of the discipline examines the global pattern of thermal environment. In other words, it is concerned with the study of the characteristics and behaviour of the atmosphere. The function of climatology is two-fold. Climatology, on the other hand, is concerned with the discussion of the component elements of climate as well as the factors which deter- mine and control its distribution. Meteorology, the physics of the lower atmosphere, studies the individual phenomenon of the atmosphere. [CDS (I) 2023 Q64]
